$6,134.60 OF RECONDITIONING — THE WEAR ITEMS ARE ALREADY DONE

On a vehicle with 129,285 miles, the fair question is what will need attention next. Pedersen Toyota has already answered most of it. This CR-V received $6,134.60 in reconditioning before it was offered for sale — and roughly three-quarters of that was genuine mechanical work, not cosmetics: both rear wheel bearings, a differential mounting bushing and absorber, front brakes, four new tires and a four-wheel alignment. Those are precisely the components that come due on a vehicle of this age and mileage, and they have been replaced rather than deferred to the next owner.

OWNERSHIP HISTORY

- Three previous owners, every one a personal vehicle — no fleet, rental or commercial use reported.
- The first owner kept it about 8 years and 5 months; the second about 12 years and 1 month; the third about 11 months.
- Both long-term owners drove it well below average: 8,689 miles per year and 4,550 miles per year, against a roughly 15,000 miles/year industry average. At 21 years old this vehicle has 129,285 miles — many cars of this vintage are well past 250,000.
- Spent its first years in Hawaii, serviced consistently at Honda dealers (Tony Honda Kona and Tony Honda Hilo), then moved to Fort Collins, Colorado in 2017 with the second owner.
